The Accused

Mr. Radovan Karadžić

THIS TRIAL CHAMBER of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the former Yugoslavia since 1991 (“Tribunal”) is seised of the Accused’s “Application for Certification to Appeal Decision on Rule 92 quater,” filed on 24 August 2009 (“Application”), and hereby renders its decision thereon.

I. Background and Submissions

1. On 29 May 2009, the Office of the Prosecutor (“Prosecution”) filed the “Prosecution’s Motion for Admission of Testimony of Witness KDZ198 and Associated Exhibits Pursuant to Rule 92 quater (“Motion”). Therein, the Prosecution sought the admission of oral testimony and related exhibits given by KDZ198 in the Krajišnik case, pursuant to Rule 92 quater of the Tribunal’s Rules of Procedure and Evidence (“Rules”), which provides for the admission of evidence from “unavailable persons.”¹
2. The Accused filed his “Response to Prosecution 92 quater Motion: Witness KDZ198” on 10 July 2009 (“Accused Response”). The Accused raised three main arguments opposing the motion: (i) Rule 92 quater violates his rights under Article 21(4)(e) of the Statute “to examine or have examined, the witnesses against him”; (ii) in the circumstances of this case, the cumulative effect of the Prosecution’s motions for judicial notice of adjudicated facts under Rule 94(B) and motions for the admission of evidence pursuant to Rules 92 bis and 92 quater is to shift the burden of proof from the Prosecution to the Accused, in violation of his right to a fair trial; and (iii) the evidence of KDZ198 relates to the acts and conduct of the Accused and to critical issues of the Prosecution’s case, and is “marred with inconsistencies, hesitations and contradictions.”²
3. Upon obtaining leave from the Chamber, the Prosecution filed its “Reply to the ‘Response to Prosecution 92 quater Motion: Witness KDZ198’” on 24 July 2009 (“Reply”), addressing the Accused’s arguments concerning the reliability of KDZ198’s evidence.³
4. On 20 August 2009, the Trial Chamber issued its “Decision on Prosecution Motion for Admission of Testimony of Witness KDZ198 and Associated Exhibits Pursuant to Rule 92 quater” (“Decision”). In its Decision, the Chamber dismissed the Accused’s argument that the operation of Rule 92 quater violates his right to examine the witnesses against him under Article 21(4)(e) of the Statute.⁴ The Chamber also held that the admission of evidence under Rules 92 bis and 92 quater, as well as the admission of adjudicated facts, does not shift the burden of proof from the Prosecution to the Accused, in violation of his right to a fair trial.⁵ In addition, the Chamber noted that Rule 89(D), which provides that evidence may be excluded if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the need to ensure a fair trial, applies to Rule 92 quater evidence, thus protecting the Accused's fair trial rights.⁶ As a result, the Chamber granted the Motion in part.⁷

5. The Accused subsequently filed this Application. He argues that the issues raised in the Decision significantly affect the fairness of his trial and points to jurisprudence of this Tribunal to the effect that admitting evidence which cannot be tested on cross-examination qualifies for certification to appeal.⁸ The Accused further submits that these issues significantly affect the expeditiousness of the trial because they involve a large number of witnesses and adjudicated facts.⁹ In addition, the Accused argues that an immediate interlocutory decision by the Appeals Chamber would materially advance the proceedings because broad categories of evidence are at issue, which will affect the very nature of the trial itself: if the Appeals Chamber agreed with the Accused the case would have to be retried.¹⁰ Finally, the Accused submits that Rules 92 bis, 92 quater, and 94(B) are innovations of the Judges of this Tribunal, were not voted upon by the Security Council, and are foreign to most national legal systems. Therefore, the Accused argues that a "head-on challenge to the 'constitutionality' and application of these rules will materially advance not only these proceedings, but fair trial jurisprudence throughout the world."¹¹

6. On 28 August 2009, the Prosecution submitted the "Prosecution's Response to Karadžić's Application for Certification to Appeal Decision on Rule 92 quater" ("Prosecution Response"). It submits that the argument that Rule 92 quater violates the right to a fair trial under Article 21(4)(e) has been addressed and rejected by the Appeals Chamber.¹² The Prosecution further submits that the argument about the cumulative effect of admitting evidence under Rule 92 bis, Rule 92 quater, and Rule 94(B) is raised prematurely as no evidence has been admitted under Rule 92 bis and the acceptance of judicially noticed facts under Rule 94(B) is properly determined in the Trial

Chamber's final assessment of all the evidence presented in the case.¹³ The Prosecution also submits that evidence of unavailable persons has been consistently admitted in the Tribunal, and that the Appeals Chamber has held that the right of an accused to cross-examine witnesses is not absolute.¹⁴ According to the Prosecution, the cases cited by the Accused in which certification to appeal was granted do not suggest that all issues relating to the admission of evidence that cannot be tested by cross-examination affect the fairness of the trial and therefore qualify for certification for appeal.¹⁵

7. The Prosecution also submits that an interlocutory decision on the admission of KDZ198's evidence will not materially advance the proceedings, noting that admission of evidence is distinct from the weight a Trial Chamber gives to such evidence.¹⁶ It further submits that this issue is properly addressed after final judgement, when the admission of evidence is complete, the Trial Chamber has accorded appropriate weight to the evidence, and it has made its ultimate determination on the acceptance of judicially noticed facts.¹⁷

II. Applicable Law

8. Rule 73(B) of the Rules requires two conditions to be satisfied before a Trial Chamber may grant an application for certification to appeal: (a) the decision in question must involve an issue which would significantly affect the fair and expeditious conduct of the proceedings or the outcome of the trial; and (b) an immediate resolution of the issue by the Appeals Chamber may, in the opinion of the Trial Chamber, materially advance the proceedings.¹⁸

9. The Trial Chamber recalls that "even when an important point of law is raised, ... the effect of Rule 73(B) is to preclude certification unless the party seeking certification establishes that both conditions are satisfied.”¹⁹ In addition, it should be noted that, even where both requirements of the Rule are satisfied, certification remains in the discretion of the Chamber.²⁰

III. Discussion

10. The Trial Chamber notes at the outset that the right of an accused to cross-examine the witnesses against him is not absolute.²¹ In addition, it should be noted that the decisions the Accused cites in support of his argument that admitting evidence which cannot be tested on cross examination qualifies for certification to appeal were factually fundamentally different from the circumstances of this case.²² In Martić, a witness died in the middle of being cross-examined and the issue was whether there had been sufficient cross-examination to admit the rest of his testimony.²³ The Prlić and Popović cases involved co-accused persons who had made statements that could not be subject to cross-examination by their fellow accused.²⁴ Unlike the evidence in those cases, the evidence of KDZ198 has been fully cross-examined by an accused with a common interest to the Accused.²⁵

11. The Chamber also adds that it is unclear at this stage of the proceedings exactly what evidence will be admitted under Rules 92 bis and 92 quater, and which adjudicated facts will ultimately be accepted. More importantly, it is also unknown what weight the Trial Chamber will ascribe to such evidence and, in particular, the evidence of KDZ198, and how that evidence will be assessed in the overall context of the case. Thus, an assessment of the impact of the Decision on the Accused’s right to a fair trial can only be made following the issuance of the judgement.

12. For that reason, the Chamber is of the view that neither prong of the Rule 73(B) test has been met by the Accused. Whether the admission of evidence of persons who are unavailable for cross-examination, combined with a large number of judicially accepted facts, would affect the fairness of the trial or the outcome of the case can only be determined in light of the weight given to that evidence in the overall context of the assessment of all the evidence in the case, including viva voce evidence. Therefore, it cannot be argued that a resolution of this issue would materially advance the proceedings when this matter can only be resolved by the Appeals Chamber once it has an indication of the weight given to this evidence by the Trial Chamber.

IV. Disposition

13. Accordingly, the Trial Chamber, pursuant to Rule 73(B) of the Rules, hereby DENIES the Application.
