Nineteenth annual report of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the Former Yugoslavia since 1991

Summary

The nineteenth annual report of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the Former Yugoslavia since 1991 covers the period from 1 August 2011 to 31 July 2012.

The Tribunal continued to focus upon the completion of all trials and appeals. At the close of the reporting period, 17 persons are in appeal proceedings, 17 persons are on trial, and one person is at the pretrial stage. Proceedings against 126 of the 161 persons indicted by the Tribunal have been completed. The report that follows details the activities of the Tribunal during the reporting period and demonstrates the Tribunal's focus on its goal of completing its proceedings as soon as possible, without sacrificing due process.

The President intensified efforts to streamline procedures and introduced a variety of reforms to improve the pace of the Tribunal's work. The President focused especially on problems that might impact the efficiency of proceedings, such as delays in translations and imbalanced workload distribution between ad litem and permanent judges. Staff attrition continued to be a serious challenge to the work of the Tribunal.

All sections of the Tribunal coordinated to ensure a smooth transition of functions to the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals. The Office of Legal Affairs and the Informal Working Group of the Security Council on International Tribunals provided extensive and valuable assistance and advice to the Tribunal. On 1 July 2012, the branch for the International Criminal Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Genocide and Other Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of Rwanda and Rwandan Citizens Responsible for Genocide and Other Such Violations Committed in the Territory of Neighbouring States between 1 January and 31 December 1994 (the branch for the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda is based in Arusha, United Republic of Tanzania) of the Residual Mechanism began operating.

During the reporting period, the Tribunal continued to make significant contributions to the development of legal norms of international criminal law and procedure, and to the maintenance of peace and stability in the states of the former Yugoslavia. The Tribunal's success is underscored by the fact that all 161 indictees are accounted for, and by the Tribunal's reputation for procedural fairness and impartiality.

The Tribunal made extensive efforts to share information about its work with relevant individuals and organizations, facilitating exchanges of information about the trials and appeals it has conducted, the substantive norms its judgements have elucidated, and the procedural approaches its judicial branches have adopted.

The Office of the Prosecutor made progress towards the completion of the Tribunal's mandate at both the trial and appellate levels. The Office continued to develop working relationships with the authorities of the States of the former Yugoslavia to encourage cooperation with the Tribunal and to support domestic war crimes prosecutions.

Under the authority of the President, the Registry continued to play a crucial role in the provision of administrative and judicial support to the Tribunal. The Office of the Registrar coordinated the work of the various Registry sections, which dealt with a wide range of legal, policy and operational matters, including the practical arrangements necessary for the commencement of the Residual Mechanism.

I. Introduction

1. The nineteenth annual report of the International Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of the Former Yugoslavia since 1991 outlines the activities of the Tribunal for the period from 1 August 2011 to 31 July 2012.

2. During the reporting period, the Tribunal continued to implement its completion strategy as endorsed by the Security Council in resolution 1503 (2003), and to focus on ensuring that trial and appeal proceedings were not delayed. At the close of the reporting period, 17 persons are in appeal proceedings, 17 persons are on trial, and one person is at the pretrial stage. The Trial Chambers delivered judgement in the case of Prosecutor v. Momčilo Perišić, and contempt judgements in the cases of Prosecutor v. Shefqet Kabashi; The Contempt Case of Dragomir Pećanac; Prosecutor v. Jelena Rašić; and Prosecutor v. Vojislav Šešelj (case numbers IT-03-67-R77.3 and IT-03-67-R77.4). The Tribunal has concluded proceedings against 126 of the 161 persons indicted by the Tribunal. There are no outstanding indictments for violations of core statutory crimes.

3. President Patrick Robinson (Jamaica) and Vice-President O-Gon Kwon (Republic of Korea) demitted office on 17 November 2011, following the election of Judge Theodor Meron (United States of America) and Judge Carmel Agius (Malta) as President and Vice-President respectively. The Prosecutor, Serge Brammertz, was reappointed by the Security Council on 14 September 2011 by its resolution 2007 (2011), with effect from 1 January 2012. The Registrar, John Hocking, continued to fulfil his duties at the Tribunal.

4. Measures were taken during the reporting period to reform the Tribunal's procedures to maximize efficiency. In particular, the President implemented measures to ensure that the pace of translations would not unduly delay proceedings. Additional resources were assigned to the cases of Prosecutor v. Jadranko Prlić et al., Prosecutor v. Zdravko Tolimir, and Prosecutor v. Vojislav Šešelj to reduce previously forecast translation times by 50 per cent. Following the approval of the Secretary-General and the Security Council, the President reassigned the Tribunal's contempt cases, creating a more even workload distribution between permanent and ad litem judges, thus assuring greater efficiency in the processing of contempt cases, and minimizing their impact on other cases before the Tribunal.

5. The pace of the Tribunal's trials and appeals continued to be affected by staffing shortages and the loss of highly experienced staff members. Despite resolutions adopted by the General Assembly and the Security Council on the issue of staff retention, the problem persists. In response, the President, joining the calls of his predecessor, urged the Security Council to take measures to help the Tribunal to find practicable solutions to address the issue as the Tribunal approaches the completion of its work. Following requests by the President in December 2011, and clear statements of support from the Security Council, the Tribunal obtained a waiver from the Department of Management, allowing it to hire otherwise qualified interns directly, without waiting six months after the termination of their internships. This measure will assist the Tribunal in quickly replacing departing staff in certain circumstances.

II. Activities involving the entire Tribunal

A. President

6. The President focused his efforts upon the core functions of the Tribunal — trials and appeals. He also instituted internal reforms, pursued capacity-building and legacy projects, conducted relations with Governments and international organizations, and carried out the judicial responsibilities of the Office of the President.

1. Internal reforms

7. The Tribunal amended rule 65 of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence in order to clarify the circumstances in which provisional release may be ordered by a Trial Chamber.

8. The President coordinated closely with the Office of Legal Affairs and the Informal Working Group to implement management reforms that reduced the risk of delays in judgements and appeals. In particular, the President implemented measures to expedite the translations of final trial briefs and trial judgements to avoid delays on appeals. The President instructed both the Registrar of the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia and, in his capacity as President of the Appeals Chamber of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, the Registrar of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, to assign additional resources in order to halve the projected time needed for translation in four cases. The Trial Chambers also expanded the practice of including translators in the judgement drafting process in order to expedite the translation of trial judgements.

9. The President reassigned a number of contempt cases to ad litem judges with the permission of the Secretary-General and the approval of the Security Council. Previously, the burden of contempt cases had fallen primarily on the Tribunal's permanent trial judges. This meant that permanent trial judges were seized of up to 10 contempt cases in addition to cases involving core crimes within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal. By reassigning contempt cases to the Tribunal's ad litem judges, the President relieved a burden that had been adversely affecting progress in the permanent judges' other cases.

10. The President closely monitors the progress of trials and appeals, and has proactively assigned additional legal staff to cases where increased staffing can prevent delays.

2. Capacity-building and legacy

11. In October 2011, the Tribunal, the Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) and the United Nations Interregional Crime and Justice Research Institute officially closed the joint 18-month "War Crimes Justice Project", which had been established in Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and was a project generously supported by the European Union. The success of the project inspired to begin planning another similar project, in consultation with the Tribunal.

12. On 15 and 16 November 2011, the Tribunal hosted a Conference on the global legacy of the Tribunal, which was attended by over 350 participants. The Conference was made possible by generous financial assistance provided by the Governments of Luxembourg, the Netherlands, the Republic of Korea and Switzerland, as well as the International Center for Transitional Justice.

13. The Tribunal also continued its assessment of the feasibility of establishing information centres in the region of the former Yugoslavia. Following a series of meetings generously sponsored by the Governments of Slovenia and Switzerland, the Tribunal began bilateral consultations with interested countries. Croatia has expressed its willingness to establish an information centre, as have the Bosniak and Croat members of the Presidency of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Discussions with all relevant States are ongoing.

14. Plans for commemorations appropriate to the Tribunal's twentieth anniversary in 2013 are in the process of being reviewed and will be announced in due course.

3. Relations with Governments and international organizations

15. Prior to the end of his Presidency in November 2011, President Robinson was actively involved in cooperation, outreach and reporting activities to secure support for the Tribunal's work and increase its international profile. President Meron took over responsibility for these activities on the assumption of the Presidency on 17 November 2011.

16. On 5 October 2011, the Tribunal's judges welcomed a group of judges and prosecutors from Kosovo on a study visit to the Tribunal. The visit was part of the Tribunal's ongoing efforts to strengthen cooperation and knowledge-sharing with members of the judiciary in the former Yugoslavia. Tribunal judges met with the visiting members of the Kosovo judiciary to discuss topics including witness protection, plea bargaining, sentencing practice, case management, the appeals process, and legal standards in war crimes adjudication.

17. On 11 November 2011, the President addressed the General Assembly regarding the Tribunal's eighteenth annual report (A/66/210-S/2011/473).

18. On 30 November 2011, the Tribunal hosted a visit by judges of the Appeals Chamber of the International Criminal Court, who met with judges of the Tribunal's Appeals Chamber in order to hear about the Tribunal's experience in preparing for appeals.

19. On 7 December 2011, President Meron addressed the Security Council regarding the sixteenth report of the Tribunal on its completion strategy (S/2011/716).

20. From 10 to 18 February 2012, the President visited the United States of America, providing briefings on the Tribunal's work, the transition to the Residual Mechanism, and challenges facing the Tribunal.

21. From 27 to 31 March 2012, the President visited Washington, D.C., on a visit organized by the city of The Hague in conjunction with leaders of international institutions located there.

22. On 16 April 2012, the President visited the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, providing a briefing on the Tribunal's completion strategy, the challenges it faced, and the Tribunal's transition to the Residual Mechanism.

23. On 23 April 2012, the President visited France, providing a briefing on the Tribunal's progress towards the completion of its work and the transition to the Residual Mechanism.

24. On 7 June 2012, the President addressed the Security Council regarding the seventeenth report of the Tribunal on its completion strategy (S/2012/354).

25. Between 25 and 29 June 2012, the Tribunal's judges welcomed a study trip by French judges and prosecutors organized by France's National Training School for Judges and Prosecutors. The group was briefed about the work, challenges and achievements of the Tribunal.

26. On 27 June 2012, the Tribunal's judges welcomed members of the Liberal Democratic group of the European Parliament. The parliamentarians were briefed about the work, challenges and achievements of the Tribunal.

4. Judicial activity

27. By virtue of the powers vested in him by the statute, the Rules, and the Practice Directions of the Tribunal, the President issued numerous orders assigning cases to Chambers and reviewed several decisions of the Registrar. The President also granted six requests for pardon, commutation of sentence, transfer, and early release of persons convicted by the Tribunal, and rejected six such applications.

5. Transition to the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals

28. On 20 December 2011, the General Assembly elected 25 judges to serve on a roster of judges of the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals. On 19 January 2012, the Secretary-General appointed the Registrar of the Tribunal, John Hocking, to serve as the first Registrar of the Residual Mechanism, whose branch in Arusha commenced functioning on 1 July 2012. On 29 February 2012, the Secretary-General appointed Judge Meron, President of the Tribunal and judge of the Residual Mechanism, to serve as the first President of the Residual Mechanism. On 29 February 2012, the Security Council appointed the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, Hassan Bubacar Jallow, to serve as the first Prosecutor of the Residual Mechanism. The branch for the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (based in The Hague, the Netherlands) of the Residual Mechanism will commence functioning on 1 July 2013.

29. The President has taken active steps to ensure a smooth handover of functions to the Residual Mechanism, liaising with internal and external stakeholders and facilitating the development of necessary practices and procedures. In particular, in close coordination with the Office of Legal Affairs and the Informal Working Group, the President ensured that the Rules of Procedure and Evidence of the Residual Mechanism were adopted, and that all judges of the Residual Mechanism were sworn in prior to commencement of the activities of the Arusha branch.

B. Bureau

30. Pursuant to rule 23 of the Rules, the Bureau is composed of the President, the Vice-President and the Presiding Judges of the Trial Chambers. the Bureau on the implementation of a procedure for the destruction of Chambers records related to the secrecy of deliberations.

At the 41st plenary session, on 19 October 2011, the judges elected Judge Meron as President of the Tribunal and Judge Agius as Vice-President. At the extraordinary plenary session held on 20 October 2011, the judges discussed proposed amendments to rule 65 (B) of the Rules.

33. On 21 to 25 October 2011, the judges travelled to Berlin for a retreat personally funded by the judges. 61. Both Vojislav Šešelj and the amicus curiae prosecutor have appealed the trial judgement in Prosecutor v. Vojislav Šešelj (Case No. IT-03-67-R77.3), which found Šešelj guilty of one count of contempt of the Tribunal. The briefing of the appeal is currently in progress. Vojislav Šešelj also appealed the trial judgement in Prosecutor v. Vojislav Šešelj (Case No. IT-03-67-R77.4), which found Šešelj guilty of one count of contempt of the Tribunal. The briefing of that appeal is also currently in progress. In addition, both Jelena Rašić and the prosecution have appealed the sentence imposed by the Trial Chamber on 7 February 2012, which found Rašić guilty of five counts of contempt of the Tribunal. The briefing of the appeal is complete and a hearing will be held in due course.

(c) Appeals on the merits

62. The Appeals Chamber did not render any final judgements during the reporting period.

63. There are five appeals — Prosecutor v. Nikola Šainovic et al., Prosecutor v. Milan Lukić and Sredoje Lukić, Prosecutor v. Vujadin Popović et al., Prosecutor v. Vlastimir Đorđević, and Prosecutor v. Ante Gotovina and Mladen Markač — currently pending before the Appeals Chamber from previous reporting periods. One new appeal from judgement was filed before the Appeals Chamber in the Perišić case. Appeal hearings were held in the Gotovina and Markač and Lukić and Lukić cases. Judgements are due to be delivered during the second half of 2012 in both of those cases. Pre-appeal activity is ongoing in the other cases of which the Appeals Chamber is seized.

(d) Other appeals

64. The Appeals Chamber rendered three decisions, in Prosecutor v. Dragomir Milošević (2) and Prosecutor v. Naser Orić (1).

65. A total of 135 pre-appeal decisions and orders were issued during the reporting period.

66. The Appeals Chamber is not seized of any review proceedings.

IV. Activity of the Office of the Prosecutor

A. Completion of trials and appeals

67. The beginning of the reporting period was marked by an important development when the last fugitive sought by the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, Goran Hadžić, was arrested in Serbia and transferred to the Tribunal at the end of July 2011. Since then, the Office of the Prosecutor has made substantial advances in finalizing its trial work. With the convergence of deadlines for final briefs and closing arguments in a number of trials, the Office of the Prosecutor is experiencing one of its busiest periods.

68. Currently, the Hadžić case is nearing the final stages of the pretrial phase; the Mladić case is in the prosecution evidence presentation phase, following the prosecution's opening statement in May 2012; the Karadžić case is in the pre-defence phase, following completion of the prosecution's evidence presentation and issuance of the Trial Chamber's judgement under rule 98 bis; and the Stanišić and Simatović case is in the final phase of presentation of evidence. In three other cases, the presentation of evidence has concluded and closing briefs and arguments have been scheduled (Haradinaj et al., Tolimir and Stanišić and Župljanin). Two cases are awaiting judgement at the Trial Chamber level (Prlić et al. and Šešelj). In addition, six cases are on appeal (Šainović et al., Lukić and Lukić, Popović et al., Dorđević, Gotovina and Markač and Perišić) and contempt proceedings are ongoing in two cases (Rašić and Šešelj).

69. The Office of the Prosecutor successfully met its case-related obligations in the reporting period, notwithstanding serious budgetary and staffing constraints. Lack of regular funding for the Mladić and Hadžić trial teams until the beginning of 2012 resulted in many staff members working simultaneously on two or more trials, thus bearing unsustainably heavy workloads. In addition, the problem of staff attrition continues unabated. In the past reporting period, staff attrition included the Deputy Prosecutor, who left to assume the role of Prosecutor of the Special Tribunal for Lebanon. His position has not been filled and his duties are currently being shared among other members of senior management in the Office of the Prosecutor. Attrition has meant that remaining staff members continue to undertake multiple roles and the Office remains indebted to its staff for their commitment to the completion of the Tribunal's mandate. However, more sustainable staffing solutions must be found. Retaining staff with relevant expertise in the cases before the Tribunal will be critical until the Tribunal's closure and the completion of all appellate work before the Residual Mechanism.

70. During the reporting period, the contempt proceedings arising from both the Rašić and Šešelj cases continued to divert already-depleted human resources. In particular, Šešelj persisted in flouting orders, which prohibit him from publishing confidential material.

71. In accordance with the downsizing process and transition to the Residual Mechanism, the Office of the Prosecutor continued to abolish posts, as trials reached completion. Staff members in the Immediate Office of the Prosecutor were actively involved in coordinating preparations for the Residual Mechanism and ensuring a smooth transition from the Tribunal to the Residual Mechanism.

B. Cooperation

72. The Tribunal continued to rely on the full cooperation of States to fulfil its mandate. The cooperation of States in the former Yugoslavia was particularly important.

73. Given that there no longer remain any fugitives indicted by the Tribunal, and subsequent to the January 2012 apprehension of Radovan Stanković, a transferee pursuant to rule 11 bis who had escaped from prison, cooperation with States in the former Yugoslavia was primarily focused on day-to-day support for ongoing trials and appeals. The Office of the Prosecutor continued to promote and assess cooperation with the region, and the Prosecutor continually renewed his efforts to foster working relations with national prosecutors. In September and November 2011, and again in April and May 2012, the Prosecutor met with officials in Zagreb, Sarajevo and Belgrade to discuss cooperation and other issues of mutual relevance.

1. Cooperation of Serbia

74. The ongoing cooperation of Serbia with the Office of the Prosecutor is vital to the successful progress of cases, especially given the tight deadlines faced by the Mladić and Hadžić trial teams. The Office required ongoing support from the Government of Serbia to access key documents and gather materials for the proper presentation of evidence to both the Trial and Appeals Chambers. In this regard, the cooperation of the Serbian authorities fully met expectations and the Office emphasizes the need to continue this collaborative working relationship in the next reporting period, under the newly elected President and Government of Serbia. Moreover, the Office expects that the Serbian authorities will provide prompt responses to outstanding requests for assistance.

75. The Office of the Prosecutor recognizes the efforts of the Serbian authorities, which resulted in the apprehension of Hadžić, the final indictee to be tried before the Tribunal. However, as the Office has repeatedly emphasized, Serbia must conduct a full investigation into the networks and individuals that harboured fugitives who had been indicted by the Tribunal, including Karadžić, Mladić and Hadžić, and hold those responsible to account. During the Prosecutor's visit to Belgrade in May 2012, the Serbian authorities provided very limited information concerning this issue. The Office notes press statements issued in June 2012 by the War Crimes Prosecutor of Serbia concerning progress made on the investigations.

The Office awaits a full report from the Serbian authorities about those developments and encourages the investigation to proceed as a matter of priority.

76. The Prosecutor has expressed concern about the comments made by the new President of Serbia, shortly after his election, denying that genocide occurred in Srebrenica in July 1995. The statements, which are not acceptable, contravene the legal and factual findings of the Tribunal and of the International Court of Justice. Such rhetoric is a step backwards, aggravates victims' suffering, and jeopardizes the fragile process of reconciliation in the former Yugoslavia.

2. Cooperation of Croatia

77. The Office of the Prosecutor continued to depend on cooperation from Croatia to complete trials and appeals in a timely manner. Over the course of the reporting period, the Croatian authorities provided timely and adequate responses to day-to-day requests from the Office for assistance and facilitated access to witnesses and evidence as required.

3. Cooperation of Bosnia and Herzegovina

78. During the reporting period, the authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina responded promptly and adequately to the requests of the Office of the Prosecutor for documents, as well as access to Government archives. The Office commended the Bosnian authorities for the arrest of Radovan Stanković on 21 January 2012. In May 2007, he had escaped from the prison where he was serving a 20-year sentence. Stanković was the first indictee of the Tribunal to be transferred to Bosnia and Herzegovina pursuant to rule 11 bis of the Rules.

79. Delays continued in prosecuting cases for which the Office of the Prosecutor has provided investigative materials to Bosnia and Herzegovina (category 2 cases). During meetings with the Prosecutor in Sarajevo, in May 2012, the Special Department for War Crimes committed to completing investigations of category 2 cases by the end of the year and the Prosecutor encourages the Department to follow through on that commitment.

4. Cooperation between States of the former Yugoslavia in judicial matters

80. Improved cooperation between States of the former Yugoslavia is needed to ensure that the perpetrators of crimes committed during the conflict are brought to justice. The Office of the Prosecutor continued to facilitate collaboration between Serbia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, and Croatia to address impunity and foster productive working relationships between regional prosecutors.

81. However, the Office of the Prosecutor remained concerned about long-standing deficiencies in judicial and legislative frameworks, which undermine efforts to consolidate the rule of law in the region. In particular, judicial institutions across the region faced crippling challenges in coordinating their activities, which resulted in unacceptable delays. Additionally, legal barriers to the extradition of suspects and the transfer of evidence across State borders obstructed effective investigations.

82. The Office of the Prosecutor notes with concern that the proposed protocol between the Prosecutor's Offices of Bosnia and Herzegovina and Serbia on the exchange of evidence and information in war crimes cases has still not been signed.

When the Prosecutor addressed the issue at his meetings in Sarajevo in May 2012, he received no satisfactory explanation for the delay in signing the protocol. Political support to conclude the agreement is needed on all sides.

5. Cooperation of other States and organizations

83. Support from States outside of the former Yugoslavia, and international organizations, remains important to the successful completion of the Tribunal's mandate. To make progress expeditiously in its casework, the Office of the Prosecutor must continue to access the wealth of information held in the archives and other institutions of Member States. The Office acknowledges the assistance it received from the United Nations and its agencies, the European Union, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), OSCE, the Council of Europe and non-governmental organizations, including those in the former Yugoslavia.

C. Support to national war crimes prosecutions and effective implementation of national war crimes strategies

84. As the Tribunal enters the final phase of its operations, the Office of the Prosecutor is increasingly focusing its attention on the transition to domestic war crimes prosecutions. The transition team, under the Prosecutor's direction, continued its work to strengthen the capacity of national judicial institutions to effectively handle the large volume of war crimes cases that remain to be prosecuted in the region. In this regard, the Office dealt with a growing number of requests for assistance, most of which were received from Bosnia and Herzegovina. Judicial authorities in the former Yugoslavia also continued to utilize procedures established under the Tribunal's Rules to access confidential evidence from the Tribunal's cases, where appropriate. The joint "liaison prosecutors" project of the European Union and the Tribunal, whereby three liaison prosecutors from the region (one each from Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia and Serbia) work with the Office of the Prosecutor in The Hague, remains a central component of the expertise transfer strategy of the Office. Three liaison prosecutors and 10 young professionals from the region continue to work in the Office, pursuant to the third funding extension granted by the European Commission, in August 2011.

85. However, serious issues remained, particularly regarding the implementation of the national war crimes strategy in Bosnia and Herzegovina. While steps were taken by Bosnia and Herzegovina to improve the processing of cases, such as increasing the rate of referral of cases from the State court to entity courts, the national war crimes strategy faced significant challenges. The Office of the Prosecutor underscores the importance of expeditiously addressing the large backlog of over 1,200 cases involving thousands of suspects, and emphasizes that this process is crucial to the overall success of the Tribunal's mandate completion and legacy. Continued efforts are needed to strengthen the capacity of entity-level courts, efforts which include increasing resource allocation at the State and entity levels.

86. Further, political attacks on the judiciary, which aim to undermine the national war crimes strategy, should cease. It is essential that political leaders from all sides in Bosnia and Herzegovina fully support war crimes prosecutions and provide all the necessary resources and support to ensure successful outcomes.

V. Activity of the Registry

87. During the reporting period, the Registry provided operational support to the Chambers and the Office of the Prosecutor, assisted in the conduct of relations with States and international organizations, provided administrative support for the Tribunal, and managed the Tribunal's Communications and Outreach Programme.

A. Office of the Registrar

88. The Immediate Office of the Registrar supported the Registrar in his overall responsibility of directing and managing the Registry, including supervising all Registry sections, and representing the Tribunal in its relations with the host State, embassies and ministries, the United Nations and other international organizations. Through the efforts of the Immediate Office of the Registrar, the Tribunal was able to increase the number of States committed to enforcing sentences rendered by the Tribunal.

89. The Immediate Office of the Registrar further assisted the Registrar in formulating and implementing the strategic priorities for the Registry, proactively adopting and streamlining operational procedures to reflect the shift in the Tribunal's activities from trials to appeals. The Immediate Office of the Registrar, together with the Division of Administration, put a special emphasis on devising a fair and transparent downsizing process for the reduction of posts in accordance with the Tribunal's completion strategy. Every staff member was issued a contract of the maximum possible duration. The measure was designed to give staff members maximum certainty about their future at the Tribunal and has contributed positively to staff morale, which is crucial for the retention of qualified and motivated staff.

90. The Immediate Office of the Registrar has assisted the Registrar in the establishment of the Residual Mechanism, and facilitated preparations for the commencement of its operations in Arusha, United Republic of Tanzania, on 1 July 2012. This facilitation involved substantial administrative and legal support for the Residual Mechanism, including: the preparation of the budget submission, negotiations on a host State agreement, the recruitment of staff, negotiations on premises and assets, the development of judicial support policies and procedures, and the preparation of the transfer of functions and related records to the Residual Mechanism.

91. The Outreach Programme continued to be the key instrument in strengthening the relationship between the Tribunal and communities in the former Yugoslavia, by promoting the Tribunal's work and legacy, and the important principle of open justice. Over 14,000 people in the former Yugoslavia and The Hague participated in a variety of outreach events, including debates, lectures, conferences and training sessions on the work of the Tribunal. The events helped reduce misconceptions and bridge knowledge gaps about the institution.

92. The most important outreach activities conducted during the reporting period included: an educational project with youth in the former Yugoslavia, engaging 3,200 young people aged between 16 and 25, which enjoyed strong support from ministries of education in the region; and a planned series of documentaries on the Tribunal's major achievements, which was launched with a film on the Tribunal's groundbreaking role in fighting impunity for wartime sexual violence. The film, produced in all of the languages of the former Yugoslavia, received excellent reviews and stimulated in-depth debate in the region.

93. Currently, the Outreach Programme depends entirely on external funding. The European Commission continued to ensure the uninterrupted functioning of the Programme, and the Government of Finland supported the youth education project. As noted by the General Assembly and a number of other international and regional actors, more vigorous outreach engagement is crucial in this decisive time of the Tribunal's existence. Therefore, the Tribunal will continue to approach Member States and other donors to support activities included in its carefully designed outreach strategy.

94. During the reporting period the Tribunal hosted 8,000 visitors, a record number, including over 300 from the former Yugoslavia. Visits were especially valuable in raising awareness and capacity-building among members of local judiciaries, journalists and activists from non-governmental organizations from the former Yugoslavia. The Tribunal's website and social media platforms continued to be essential elements of the Tribunal's communication strategy. The Tribunal website has received more than 3 million page views since August 2011. The Tribunal's social media efforts have expanded, with the recent launch of a Facebook page, which gained 300 followers in its first two weeks of operation. Viewers of the Tribunal's YouTube channel have more than doubled since last year, reaching 900,000, while the Tribunal's Twitter account has 3,000 followers, some 1,000 more than in the previous reporting period. Users from the former Yugoslavia constitute almost 50 per cent of the latter audience.

95. The Communications Service worked on the creation of the website for the Residual Mechanism, which was launched in its official languages in mid-2012. At the time of writing, work is under way to translate the content into Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian and Kinyarwanda.

B. Judicial Support Division

96. In the reporting period, the Court Management and Support Services Section supported seven first-instance cases at trial, one retrial and one pretrial case. During the same period, the Section supported six cases on appeal and seven contempt cases, including one case which remains in pretrial. It provided court officer support for seven videoconference links, 10 rule 92 bis missions, and one site visit. The Section supported one hearing conducted under rule 4 of the Rules. It also supported three self-representing accused through its pro se legal liaison officers, facilitating solutions to issues arising in the course of the proceedings. The court records assistants, court officers and court ushers processed 8,598 filings (approximately 139,400 pages) submitted by parties and others in proceedings before the Tribunal. The Office of Document Management received 69,731 pages of translation requests, of which 16,231 were identified as duplicate pages, resulting in a saving of approximately $1,313,253.¹

97. The Conference and Language Services Section continued to provide interpretation, translation and court reporting services for all the organs of the Tribunal. The translation units translated approximately 67,500 pages into English,

French, Bosnian/Croatian/Serbian, Albanian and Macedonian, while constant trial support and translation of judgements and other legal documents continued and is still ongoing. The interpretation unit registered close to 3,600 conference interpreter days. The court reporting services produced over 58,000 transcript pages. Interpretation services were also provided for official meetings, witness proofing sessions, and missions away from the seat of the Tribunal, including in the region of the former Yugoslavia.

98. During the reporting period, the operations and support units of the Victims and Witnesses Section assisted 315 witnesses (and accompanying support persons) travelling to The Hague to give evidence. The Section's protection unit coordinated professional responses to an increased number of threats to witnesses before, during and after their appearances to give evidence in Tribunal proceedings, and worked on the relocation of protected witnesses.

99. The Office of Legal Aid and Detention Matters continued to manage the Tribunal's legal aid system by serving over 390 defence team members, thereby safeguarding the accused's right to counsel. The majority of accused who are in the Tribunal's custody receive legal aid, and 60 per cent of those accused are involved in cases ranked at the highest complexity level. The Office continued to manage the facilities granted to all defence teams, and to ensure full respect of the rights of the accused by responding to complaints and concerns of detainees held at the United Nations Detention Unit, processing requests for visits to the Unit, and acting as a liaison between defence counsel and the Tribunal. The Office further provided facilities to self-represented accused in cooperation with the pro se legal liaison office and the Unit, and managed the assignment and resources for amicus curiae investigators and prosecutors in contempt cases.

100. As the Tribunal works towards the completion of its mandate, the United Nations Detention Unit further reduced its cell capacity by 19 per cent, while continuing to provide security and care for an average of 32.7 detainees during the reporting period, under the authority of the Tribunal. Many detainees were provided with medical care, including specialist medical assistance. The Unit facilitated the detainees' presence at court hearings, whether in person or through videoconference. It facilitated a large number of requests for provisional releases of various durations, as ordered by the Chambers. The Unit assisted self-represented accused by providing them with extra storage and office space, granting computer and database access suited to a detention environment, and allowing for witness interviews and proofing in exceptional circumstances. The Unit accommodated detained witnesses and detainees charged with contempt of the Tribunal, and facilitated contact between detainees and the media, where appropriate.

C. Administrative Support Division

101. By its resolution 66/239, the General Assembly, having considered the reports of the Secretary-General and the Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions on the proposed programme budget, decided to appropriate a total amount of $281,036,100 gross for the biennium 2012-2013.

102. During the biennium 2012-2013, extrabudgetary resources are estimated at $1,739,300 to be utilized for a variety of Tribunal activities. As of 15 July 2012, cash donations of approximately $50.8 million had been received by the Voluntary

Fund over the lifetime of the Tribunal. For the period from 15 June 2011 to 15 July 2012, the Tribunal received and administered $1,876,889 in voluntary cash contributions.

103. In its resolution 66/240 A, the General Assembly decided to appropriate a total amount of $49,771,700 gross ($47,325,100 net) for the Residual Mechanism during the biennium 2012-2013.

104. The Division of Administration remained actively engaged in downsizing and the second comparative review process, which was formulated in consultation with staff representatives. During the biennium 2010-2011, the Tribunal downsized 170 posts. The approved budget for 2012-2013 contemplates a further net reduction of 120 posts during the upcoming biennium.

105. The Division of Administration coordinated the preparation of the revised budget estimates for the biennium 2010-2011 and the proposed budget for the biennium 2012-2013. The Division of Administration was heavily involved in the formulation of the first budget of the Residual Mechanism. Following the closure of one of the three office buildings in The Hague, the Division of Administration finalized an office space allocation master plan in order to ensure the smooth relocation of personnel and archives to the remaining buildings of the Tribunal.
